NOVEMBER 2003

VOLUME 30 #1

FROM THE DESK OF FATHER BLANEY..

Thanksgiving Day will soon be here. I reflect back to a Thanksgiving in which I ate heartily and took a walk around the block with another person. We saw several pumpkins on porches. I mentioned that I felt like a pumpkin – quite rotund. And afterwards, I reflected on the life of a pumpkin. A pumpkin has as a purpose, taking up space, and with a hard shell and is empty on the inside. We are a lot like that in some ways. When we are “thumped,” our hard shell protects us but we are obviously hollow. We, like the pumpkin, would like to be “thee” pumpkin at the harvest festival or maybe the cute pumpkin chosen by the priest to rest near the altar these days but in reality we are dumped in the food basket given to a poor family at Thanksgiving.

One day as I was in our woods with a villager I held up an acorn and asked the villager what this was. He had no idea. I said that it can become a mighty oak tree through a transformation. And then I thought of the story of Cinderella. She really wanted to go to the Great Ball. And there was a transformation – In fact a lowly pumpkin became a golden coach! That was a big transformation. Imagine the genuine fulfillment of the pumpkin bringing someone to the Great Ball. And imagine the sheer joy of Cinderella being fitted with the glass slipper by the Prince of Peace. She then would realize her absolute uniqueness in all the world. She truly made a difference in the world. She didn't just take up space and wasn't hollow on the inside. She had a great purpose!

Out here in Sharing Meadows there are pumpkins who have been “passed by” by many people. And yet they want to go to the Great Banquet. There is a big transformation occurring. The people are becoming more loving and thoughtful. This Thanksgiving time I am especially thankful for that transformation that is happening and all of the generous people who are making it possible. God bless you all!

29 YEARS OF GOOD NEWS!

The Good News is celebrating its 29th birthday this month! A lot has changed since the newsletter first started going out, but the purpose of the newsletter remains the same; to spread information about programs available for other-abled adults and their families. With a circulation of just over 10,000 people, more readers than ever before are enjoying the Share Foundation's Good News every month. If you have any friends or family whom you feel would like reading the Good News, feel free to call the office at 219-778-2585 and add them to our mailing list. NOVEMBER MINI-CAMP Responsibility to Thank God

The theme for November's mini-camp is our responsibility to thank God for all that he has given us. The other fall mini-camp themes, “responsibility to ourselves” and “responsibility to our families,” will compliment November's theme and in turn lead to December's theme of our “responsibility to do for others.” For the campers, the repetition of responsibility is becoming understood on a deeper level than themes have been received in the past. Even those campers who are only able to attend one mini-camp this season will benefit from the seriousness in which the theme is approached during group discussions, prayers and even through arts and crafts. Thank you to those campers who have come to Camp Sharing Meadows with their minds open to God's word and their hearts open to share thoughts and feelings with others. The remaining Mini-camps in Fall 2003 are scheduled for November 14 – 16 and December 12 – 14. If you would like more information about Camp Sharing Meadows, please contact Michelle in the office at 219.778.2585.

THOUGHTS FROM THE EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

By Kathleen Kelly

The grounds of Sharing Meadows are especially beautiful in the autumn. Thousands of trees are ablaze with color, the mums are in full bloom, the blue sky is vibrant and the air is crisp and invigorating. It's a great time to be outside and revel in the splendor of the world God created for us. There is so much to be thankful for!

The Villagers are hard at work harvesting black walnuts, making raspberry applesauce and preparing the grounds for winter. Witnessing their growth and accomplishments makes me realize how blessed they are to live in this community. Once again, there is so much to be thankful for, especially for the stewards who guide and encourage their growth. God has truly blessed us with good people who unselfishly give of themselves in service to our Villagers. When the residential program began nine years ago, we knew that finding the right stewards would be the greatest challenge of all. While at times we have struggled with this challenge, overall God has blessed us with a good number of caring people and we are grateful for the stewards who have been inspired to join our community.

Our current stewards form a team that works like a well-oiled machine. Joe, who is from upstate New York, oversees Gary and Tom in house A and is in his fourth year of service to Share Foundation. Daler hails from Texas originally but now calls Sharing Meadows home, more specifically house B where she just began her second year of nurturing Dawn and Aimee. Kara, who also comes from Texas, recently graduated from Notre Dame University and chose to spend a year in volunteer service before going on to grad school. She resides in house C encouraging Tina and Kim to learn and grow. Jeff, the only steward who comes from Indiana, graduated from Indiana University in August with a degree in education and came to Sharing Meadows to gain experience before embarking on a career in teaching. He shares house D with Bob and Craig, providing companionship and teaching valuable life skills to foster their independence. Marshall and Elaine, who came to us from Wisconsin, retired early to be able to spend their time in service to others and they are currently in their second year at Sharing Meadows. They reside in house E with Christine and Becky, where Elaine is a great role model for the ladies in her role as steward of the home while Marshall teaches woodworking skills to the Villagers during their vocational training. Mike, who comes from New Jersey, is also a Notre Dame graduate who elected to do a year of volunteer service before he goes on to grad school so now he sees to the needs of Craig and Ron in house F.

These seven people comprise a great team for the Villagers of Sharing Meadows. Their dedication, compassion and altruism is commendable. To see them work together - in spite of their differences in age, interests or experiences - for the good of the Villagers is remarkable. To see the Villagers thrive under their direction is heartwarming. God has truly blessed us and there is much to be thankful for. This Thanksgiving season, my prayer of thanks will include a special one for the good people whose dedication to others enriches the lives of our Villagers - the stewards of Sharing Meadows.

SHARE OUR DREAMS GALA & SILENT AUCTION

The 9th Annual Share Our Dreams Gala is taking place on Friday, November 7th at the Center for Visual and Performing Arts in Munster, Indiana. Everything is coming together and the Gala is sure to be a worthwhile evening that will benefit the Share Foundation's residential and camp programs. Thank you to the Gala committee and other contributors who have been hard at work in preparation for this event. Look for a description of the evening in December's Good News.

HAPPY THANKSGIVING

The Share Foundation would like to wish each of you a happy Thanksgiving. There is much to be thankful for here at Sharing Meadows and in all of our lives. We are thankful for your support and generosity that make our programs possible. Have a great holiday!

SPECIAL VISITORS

The Villagers have welcomed several youth groups into Sharing Meadows recently. A group of 7th and 8th graders from Queen of All Saints, led by Sandy Furman, traveled from Michigan City to Rolling Prairie in September for an afternoon of swimming, games, snacking and socializing. The weather complied and it turned out to be a sunny, warm day. Furman, who has brought groups to Sharing Meadows in the past, feels that the student's memories of their time spent getting to know the Villagers will stay with them for many years to come. In hopes of perpetuating attitudes of acceptance and tolerance of all people, Queen of All Saints and the Share Foundation are setting up a permanent schedule of activities for the students and the Villagers.

With the same goals in mind, the La Lumiere school has developed a similar schedule of activities for students to interact with the Villagers. Where the Queen of All Saints students are coming to Sharing Meadows for social activities, a group of around 15 La Lumiere students come to work alongside the Villagers during their normal workday. The tasks include raking leaves, folding newsletters and creating a path through the woods. Partnerships with Queen of All Saints and La Lumiere have enriched the lives of both the students and the Villagers.

PLANNED GIVING CENTER

Charitable Remainder Trusts—Part One: Just How Do They Work?

In this column we have attempted to encourage you to think about planned giving through various vehicles: bequests, life insurance plans, retirement plans, and charitable remainder trusts. In doing so, we have defined these vehicles and touched on some of the tax and other estate planning benefits in an effort to help you decide which of these gift options might be right for you and your family. Over the next few months, we would like to show you that planned giving is a 2-way street. In many instances, making a planned gift to the Share Foundation will help you to support the other-abled for eternity, while also assuring that you have made sound financial decisions that affect you during your retirement years and your family for years to come.

Although there are a number of trusts, let's concentrate on just one: charitable remainder unitrusts. A charitable remainder unitrust is designed to receive a person's assets and make variable lifetime annual payments equal to a percentage of the fair market value of trust assets, determined annually. There are three types of charitable remainder unitrusts: (1) a straight unitrust which pays a minimum of 5 percent of the fair market value of the assets determined annually to the beneficiaries; (2) net-income-only unitrusts which pay all the income earned up to the amount stated in the trust and cannot exceed more than the stated percentage in any given year; and (3) net-income-plus-makeup unitrusts which provide more income for the beneficiary when the earnings are higher than the stated percentage amount. This net-income-plus-makeup trust allows beneficiaries to "make up" for any deficiencies in income received in past or future years.

Consider this example of a retired donor considering a planned gift through a Charitable Remainder Unitrust:

Situation: Mr. Bennett is 65 years old, owns a small business and wants to make a gift to the Share Foundation; however, Mr. Bennett wants to structure his gift in such a way as to receive income for the rest of his life. His small business nets approximately $6,000 a year. He would like to increase his income and has considered selling his business. Ultimately, he has decided not to sell because he would be hit with large capital-gains tax.

Solution: Mr. Bennett could transfer the business into a net income charitable remainder unitrust with Share Foundation as the charitable remainder beneficiary. That way, if the trustee is fortunate enough to sell the business, let's say for $150,000 and reinvest the proceeds then each year the trustee will pay a percentage of the net fair market value of the trust assets, determined annually, to Mr. Bennett.

Benefits:

- The total fair market value of the $150,000 trust at the end of the first year generates an increase in first year income. (At 6%, that would generate $9,750 or a $3750 increase over previous years.)
- Mr. Bennett was able to make a substantial deferred gift to Share Foundation
- Mr. Bennett was able to avoid capital-gains tax
- * Mr. Bennett received an income-tax deduction
- Mr. Bennett received an increased life income that also may be eligible for subsequent favorable tax breaks in coming years
- Share Foundation is able to continue operating its programs and services for the other-abled with the knowledge of Mr. Bennett's substantial deferred gift!

Charitable remainder unitrusts are a win-win situation. We encourage you to consult your financial planner or tax adviser when making decisions regarding your investments and estate plan.
